FROM THE PRESIDENTS

Dearest Friends,

Now that we are finally reverting to physical meetings, thank you all for readily embracing our physical meetings and making the transition a breeze. Your enthusiasm, laughter and chatter is truly encouraging. Although, we must urge you to wear your face masks during meetings to ensure your safety and of those around you.

We have also continued zoom meetings for those who are not yet comfortable to join us in person. We even had the first hybrid event of IWA and had good attendance both on our online and offline platforms. Many thanks, once again for making our efforts fruitful. We at IWA have now been known to keep abreast of the changes around us and become tech savvy as the situation demands of us.

Travel is an investment in yourself. We are excited about the trip to Laos, that's from Sept 16th to the 24th. Wish you all a bon voyage and lots of fun holidaying.

Block your calendar for the two major IWA events in October. The International Music Day on Oct 3rd in memory of our member Nirmal Seshadri wherein we honour a young upcoming musician.

And we also have the IWA Diwali celebrations on Oct 14th at MRC. Our deepest gratitude to Visalakshi Ramaswami for generously hosting the event at MRC year on year.

As always, our activity chairpersons have interesting meetings scheduled this month too! Looking forward to meeting you all very soon!

WITH LOVE, MADRAS

With love, Madras is an anthology of 20 homes and their owners. Two architects Ashna Lulla and Vignesh Sivakumar traverse the city, dissecting it on the basis of neighbourhoods, typology of homes, family dynamics, career choices, and personal aesthetics. This led to hours spent meeting with interesting people in their homes, copious interviews and edits, culminating in a collection of twenty homes that felt as though they were inherently part of the architecture of Madras.

By curating the homes of Madras in this book, they hope to share the pure and unadulterated pride they feel in being from here and part of its story.

Ashna currently works as an independent interior designer, and is a contributor at Architectural Digest, India. Vignesh practices both architecture and photography independently, the latter under the alias Chasing Pixels.

JUST PLAY! - VINITA SIDHARTHA IN CONVERSATION WITH SHALINI BISWAJIT

India has a rich culture of traditional games, but sadly many of them have disappeared into oblivion. These are fun, elemental, and easy to play games by people of all backgrounds, ages, cultures, and qualifications. Most importantly each of them teach us lessons for life.

Vinita Sidhartha founder of Kreeda Games and author of 'Just Play: Life Lessons from Traditional Indian Games' elaborates that every game—from Panch Kone to Solah Seedi to Aadu Puli Aatam—represents or captures an aspect of life and the world.

They enable the player to view situations calmly and objectively to be able to isolate the core of the problem.

Against the backdrop of an art show titled 'Games People Play' curated by our very own member Shalini Biswajit, the Kreeda games will be laid out for the members to play before and after the meeting.

MODERN PERSPECTIVES ON MYTHOLOGICAL NARRATIVES

Ask a woman: “Do you wish your life to be any different?” And she would probably say she wished her consent was asked for more. She might also say that to smile, to be warm and friendly, were natural human behaviours, that these should not be interpreted as consent.

The core of today’s Theme- Modern Tellings of Ancient stories, an hour with Rajarajeshwari Mahitha, engaged in our Pura kathas where we give space for the women to speak.

Mahitha is an actor, writer, and storyteller, passionate about mythology. Inspired by stories she read and heard while growing up and taken aback at the scarcity of female voices in them, she researches and retells these mythological stories from a woman’s perspective. Mahitha insists that she is a die-hard romantic, and her best stories are soaked in the magic of love.
